

August 12th
1883.

Maria Therapen Court from Tol 992.
Too restless for Ward 5 so has again been transferred to No 7. She still talks very incoherently and her actions are very peculiar a few days ago she broke the wire work of the aviary & let several birds out when asked why she did so she denied having done it although seen in the act The janitor, parson &c are sent to her but detained by Officers of the establishment.
A few months ago she had a small parcel sent to her from her sister, this it was found out the other day she had carried about unopened since its receipt so it was opened and was found to contain chocolate she would not however eat any but packed it up saying that she would ^{keep} them for her children

Sept. 10th

She sleeps fairly well takes all her meals and is more amiable again so has been transferred to No 8. She has still various delusions and she conducts herself very strangely she takes a fair amount of punishment but does so at irregular times and altho' she has extra diet, she frequently complains that she is starved &c

November 10th

She does not look quite so well as she did, is as peculiar as ever, says that she is starved and that we have stolen her milk bress &c

January 7th 1884.

She is more tractable than she was but she still gives expression to various delusions, says that she is a lady and frequently alludes to

June 12th

the magnitude of her wardrobe &c in a very childish way.
She now resides in No 6. She displays herself to some extent but is very peculiar and still gives expression to various delusions all of which are of a very extravagant nature.

July 12

1885.

She has gained flesh and is much more contented than she was but there is no improvement whatever in her mental condition. She talks very frequently a great deal about her sick dress &c and her delusions she gives expression to a fancy as formerly about being a "grand lady" &c

Aug 25th

In consequence of arrangements having been made by the Guardians of the Board of King's Lynn with ^{some} the Magistrates of the Borough of Lynn to receive all their lunatics she has to day been transferred to their asylum at Hillside.

I am indeed sorry I did not see when I came for my wife, I did see for you & was informed you were dead. My wife has led me a very unhappy life the last few days, her accusation to me has been really shocking, she found the contents of the house packed down, which was nicely arranged for the latter home, she became white-washed and packed from top to bottom, and she expressed her delight in improved home, she at times very great hatred towards me, but always had a peculiar way of saying her affections towards me, I am also sorry I worried you & about my life to me so quickly, but I was with a feeling that it was her own wish she never appeared to control, I did not however be so become to you again, but leave you superior knowledge & skills, I feel sure you will display my poor wife, and in good time inform a case will be effected. I did not intend to say that she (for years) exhibited some signs of undom mind or mental derangement whatever, was her natural self. Very thoughtful, irritable, dissatisfied, irritable, and a very nervous & excitable woman, her present illness was a very sudden affair indeed, I will explain to you. About two weeks before my wife was first admitted a patient at "Lynn," one Saturday night we and has employed herself much less. In consequence of this release her husband was communicated with saying that under the circumstances her discharge would be delayed. The appended letter was in reply, so unless she becomes worse he will apply for her at the next Committee and take her out on trial for a month.

March 26th

She is very peculiar talking to herself & when asked why she does so, her reply is that she is praying for her discharge. She is cheerful & contented altho' this is not the slightest reason for her being so for she decides in the next agreeable word has often died and is considered in every way. Her husband was to day telegraphed to telling him not to come to morrow.

Her husband notwithstanding the advice he has had and the telegram requesting him not to come made his appearance this morning and was so anxious that his wife should have a trial that he was allowed to apply for her, and was permitted to take her out on probation for a month.

In the meantime some she conducted herself in a very peculiar way, kneeling and praying for her release & thanking the Lord for the kindness that she had received here. ^{Wright p 4 1/2}

April 4th

She to-day returned to the Regimen accompanied by an medical certificate to the effect that she was unfit to remain at large. ^{Wright p 4 1/2}

When admitted she was in much the same state as she was several months prior to her discharge, talked very strangely, said ^{she had} two teeth which were to be held as she had a splendid hair, beautiful silk dresses, &c. She slept well but is rather restless to-day and unwilling to take her meals.

She sleeps fairly well and is no particular trouble, but she is restless wanders about in an aimless way, talks incoherently, and is always anxious to impress upon anyone that she is very respectable and has some beautiful dresses at home. She is not very willing to take her meals, & although she has been sick always greedy.

23rd

For several days she has been very restless & irritable, wandering about talking to herself and frequently kneeling down & praying. She is self willed and quarrels a great deal about the clothes she wears and her diet, still displeases her, nevertheless she takes a fair quantity and is very greedy.

May 10th

She is very peculiar indeed talking at random and her actions are very strange. She wanders about in an aimless way, does not employ herself in any way, in fact will not keep herself tidy, or make or own bed. She does not associate with the other patients at all and seldom speaks to any one excepting to request that she may be sent to her beautiful house at Lynne. She has an idea that things are sent to her and that we detain them. For the last 3 weeks she has been rather more amiable and has consequently been removed to 105. She is still indolent talks very strangely and is very greedy, indeed for if she sees a patient with any luxury she tries to get it saying that it was intended for her. She sleeps fairly well and takes all her meals but is rather unwilling to take her dinner in the hall.
